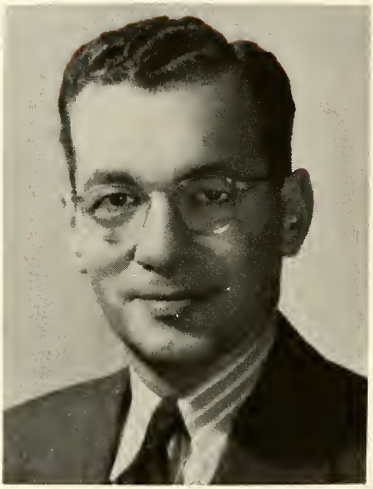
FOREWORD

"YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU," the play presented by our thespians, established a scholarship fund to aid deserving students. BUT WE feel that the graduate CAN TAKE three acquisitions. For two years we have attended classes together. During these two years, many life-long friendships have been made. Participation in athletics has taught us fair play. Therefore, THE TOWER of 1949 presents as its theme: KNOWLEDGE, FRIENDSHIP, SPORTSMANSHIP.

J. RUSSELL DUNLAP



DEDICATION

In deepest appreciation for his genial and sincere friendship during our years at York Junior College, we, the class of 1949, dedicate the "You Can't Take It With You" Tower edition to Professor J. Russell Dunlap, whose many and valued legacies we shall take with us. Among many qualities, they include his constant willingness to look into, understand and compromise our problems, however small; to initiate, to conduct and to participate in student and faculty activities. Under his influence, the ofttimes mustiness of English Literature and Bible classes cleared into refreshing and interesting studies, making them favorite subjects for most of us.

Finally, we take with us the memory of that "Is everybody happy?" look twinkling in his eyes.

KNOWLEDGE

PRESIDENT AND

Lester F. Johnson

President's Message:

A college year book serves as an effective medium to preserve pictures of college life and to record from year to year college traditions and history. In the years to come this annual will bring back to you vivid memories of friends and classmates, of teachers and experiences and, we hope, will give you much pleasure.

To all of you who have helped endow a young community institution with high standards and noble traditions, yours will be the greatest satisfaction as you review the 1949 Tower. Students, teachers, and others have been co-workers in building and establishing post-high school educational opportunities for youth in the community. No restriction has been placed upon race, color or creed. This, as a community project, is a rainbow in the sky of a world torn apart by destructive forces, prejudices, suspicions, and fears.

If your associations and experiences at the York Junior College have directed you toward paths of service to others, where you can build for goodwill among men, yours will be a most happy life. This is my wish for all of you.

DEAN of MEN

Byron W. Hartley

The gentleman from Indiana. Our new dean, Byron W. Hartley, hails originally from the Hoosier state. He comes to us from Dover, Delaware, where he served as superintendent of schools. Dean Hartley is well qualified for his position, having formerly served as President of Essex County Junior College and later as Dean of Greenmount Junior College in Poultney, Vermont.

With this previous service in junior college administrative posts, it is no new experience for Dean Hartley to cope with the problems of original schedules, schedule changes and the numerous duties of a dean. In addition to his administrative post, Dean Hartley conducts two classes in Psychology II.

In the classroom and out, his main objective is to teach the student to have all facts learned "make sense." His chief schooltime hobby is determining and explaining the origin of words. In his presence, the student learns, unaware that he is being taught. His manner of dealing with student problems is not stern and dictatorial, but lenient and unbiased.

Dean Hartley is indeed welcome to York Junior College. His experience and judgment are respected by both faculty and students.

DEAN of WOMEN

Elizabeth G. Walz

Mrs. Elizabeth G. Walz was appointed dean of women in November, 1948. Her appointment added many new duties to her already full schedule as librarian. Mrs. Walz's main interest is the forming of closer ties between the faculty and the students. Her ultimate goal is to make college life as interesting and valuable as possible to each student.

Our dean received her B.S. degree at Elmira College. She had graduate work at Rutgers University, Drexel Institute and the University of Pennsylvania. At Western Kentucky, she received her library major. Under her supervision, the library has grown from 4608 to 6070 volumes.

Mrs. Walz, of all the faculty, is probably closest to the student body. This is due not only to her position with the library and her necessary contacts with students as dean of women, but also because her gracious manner invites many to go to her when trouble arises. She is never too busy to stop her work to talk to students, faculty or visiting alumni. The chief harbor for many visitors is the library, where they always find a smiling welcome to meet them.

Short Story Writing

Reading, speaking, listening and writing are the four communication skills on which the English department has concentrated its efforts this year. The Freshman composition course is based on these methods of communication. In correlation with English 101, a laboratory, in which theme-writing and oral communication are stressed, was instituted during the last semester. All laboratory students were required to take A. C. E. placement tests as a preliminary phase of their lab course.

In the field of experiment, the Harvard Reading Films were made available to all York Junior College students, the purpose being to help each student improve his reading rate and his comprehension. Plans are being made for more extensive use of the films next year.

Our English students leave Y. J. C. with an adequate foundation in English due to the untiring efforts of the department's competent and hard-working professors.

Spanish

The purpose of the foreign language department, which includes French, German, Spanish, Latin and Greek, is not only to give the students a knowledge of the language, but of the peoples and their cultural background as well. This goal is accomplished through supplementary reading and movies in the respective languages. There are other worlds to explore through the medium of the literature of these countries. Many of the artistic values of the literature are lost in translation.

In the world as it is now, language barriers must be erased. In teaching the students reading and conversation, the language department hopes to increase their understanding of the peoples of these countries.

Mathematics

The York Junior College Mathematics department offers to first- and second-year students a variety of courses designed to meet the needs of those who wish to terminate their mathematical education, as well as the students who will transfer to other colleges and continue mathematics. Under the leadership of Hallatt B. Hammatt, head of the department, and Thomas McFadden, the young Einsteins proceed through a series of studies integrated to meet the Mathematical requirements of any institution they might choose after leaving the junior college.

Mathematics 101-102 are, respectively, college algebra and trigonometry. These courses are for liberal arts students.

Mathematics 103-104 are offered for engineering students and science majors. The first covers both college algebra and trigonometry in one semester, while the second semester course, 104, includes an introduction to analytical geometry and integral calculus.

Mathematics 201-202 continues and completes the analytical geometry and calculus begun in the 104 course.

Mathematics 105-106 was established this year for majors in economics and accounting. It features business theory, banking practices, interest and depreciation and similar subjects of importance to aspiring Rockefellers.

TRIGONOMETRY · ENGINEERING DRAWING

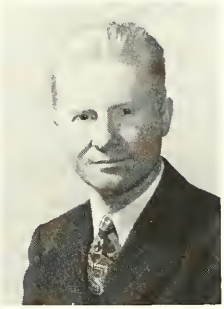
Engineering Drawing



Engineering drawing is another means of expression which could be compared to music and the arts. People often have excellent ideas, but they experience difficulty in getting these ideas across to others. Drawing is a definite and a clearcut way to show these ideas. An engineer must have drawing to teach him to put an idea into concrete form.

One main division of Engineering drawing is Descriptive Geometry. This subject aids in the development of imagination which is quite essential to competent engineers. An old expression which refers to drawing states that, "Drawing is the language of industry." However, the new concept is, "Drawing is the language of creation."

The Conservatory of Music of York Junior College operates as a separate department of the school and maintains studios apart from the college.

The music department is staffed with professors who have had experience abroad as well as in this country, and who are outstanding for their musical contribution to the community. This department offers valuable cultural development which cannot be attained through any other means; and, it also forms the nucleus for the musical talent of YJC.

Courses are offered in Voice, Piano, Organ, Musical Instruments, as well as in theory.

Economics, History

Miss VanHorn's courses embrace frequent lectures and group discussions, along with many field trips to give the student first hand knowledge of the social problems which are considered in the classroom. In both the introductory course and in sociology the student is acquainted with the sociological phases of past and contemporary life and gains a concise comprehension of the complex group relations within modern cultures.

To broaden the range of his subjects, Mr. Falco stresses recitation and class discussion, intermingled with frequent explanatory lectures and, where such are expedient, field trips, classroom reports, and outside study of related works. In economics an analysis is made of the structure and functions of modern industrial society, and the principles of economic theory are considered. Mr. Falco's survey course in American History covers the political, economic and social development of the nation from the earliest knowledge of the American Indian up to and including the Atomic Age.

Those sciences which treat of human groups, the social sciences, are conducted under the very able guidance of Miss Marie Louise Van Horn and Mr. Joseph A. Falco. Mr. Falco's courses comprise three periods weekly of both American History and Principles of Economics. Miss VanHorn also conducts two courses of three hours each throughout the year, the Introduction to Social Sciences, which is an orientation course, and Principles of Sociology.

The Biology department of York Junior College offers a wide selection of courses which will prepare students for the fields of medicine, nursing, agriculture, medical secretary and laboratory technology.

General biology, anatomy, physiology, bacteriology, microbiology and botany are taught by Dr. Lenore Ward, head of the department, Miss Gladys Stockslager and Mrs. Miriam Bauer.

The instructors strive to stimulate student interest in animal and plant life, to explain the value of this life to human existence, to teach the relationship between animals and plants and to encourage a scientific attitude on the part of the students.

Chemistry

The natural science courses are studied avidly by many Penn State Freshmen, pre-medical students and science majors. The two basic courses are chemistry, which treats of the composition and transformation of matter, and physics, which treats of the physical phenomena associated with matter. These subjects are taught by lecture-demonstrations of the basic laws, theories and computations. Further association of these laws is made possible by experimentation in the laboratory. In this way, each student is able to verify all classroom discussion by his own work in the laboratory.

MEN

The required program of the physical education department consists of the following: inter-collegiate athletics in basketball and golf; and intra-mural athletics in golf, touch football, basketball and table tennis.

Physical education offers the opportunity for each student to learn new physical education activities and to become more skilled in those in which he has some aptitude.

WOMEN

With the establishment of three primary objectives: to maintain good health—to develop activity skills—and to promote worthy uses of leisure time, the following physical education program for women has been devised:

Fall—volleyball and badminton;

Winter—basketball, dancing, rhythmics and swimming;

Spring—archery, golf, tennis, and riding.

Each girl is urged to participate in all of these activities, to learn the rules and regulations, techniques and skills of the various sports and to enjoy them to the utmost.

BUSINESS MANAGER

Glenn M. Abel

Mr. Glen M. Abel, the popular business manager of York Junior College, conducts all matters pertaining to finances in his new, well-equipped office.

It is "Glen" who attends to all veterans' affairs, including the vets' certificates, fees and records. He also acts as mediator when difficulties arise with the Veterans' Administration. For the non-veterans, it is "Glen" who handles tuition, fees, text-books and other equipment. If an organization wishes to use the lounge for a meeting, it is "Glen" who must be contacted for permission. It is "Glen" who supervises the rental of the gymnasium, and who is vitally interested in the school's athletic program. And if the students "run-out" of nickels, and the change machine is empty, who else but "Glen" would convert their dimes and quarters? However, this year Mr. Abel has found time to assume a new role, that of co-director of "You Can't Take It With You." Because of his interest in the students and his desire to make York Junior College a reputable school, he is recognized as the real friend and counsellor of the students, and as an invaluable aid to the faculty and other administrators.

FRIENDSHIP

Seated: C. Ortale, N. Hibner, D. Getz, J. Potts, J. Nealing, R. Kane, R. Myers. Standing: R. Newlin, R. Kitt, H. Hildebrand, J. Hagen, P. Bowman.

Student Council

The Student Council is the link between the faculty and the students. This council directs and promotes student activities. Representatives from each organization, the Student Cabinet and a faculty advisor comprise this governing body.

Social Committee

This committee of students appointed by the respective class presidents and of faculty members appointed by the college president, plans all of the social functions of the school. Members of the committee are:

Left to Right: J. Potts, R. Kane, R. Newlin, A. Cocklin, N. Boyer, J. Nealing, H. Hildebrand, D. Getz, J. Hagen, G. Meisenhelder.

Music

Organized at mid-semester, the chorus has undertaken to unite the vocal talent of the school into a secular group which presented a musical program at Commencement.

Linguistians

The Linguistians represent the culmination of all of the language departments of the school. Their meetings were predominantly cultural and they sponsored the annual Mardi Gras in February.

Library Staff

This small group of students, responsible for conducting the library, aided Mrs. Walz in maintaining peace and order during their free periods. They are:

Standing: C. Morton, A. Wujnovich, A. Poff, J. Smith, S. Peckham, A. Cocklin, P. Lee, P. Stambach, R. Sterner. Seated: E. Walz, librarian.

Alpha Rho Sigma

Alpha Rho Sigma is a fraternity for engineering students. The purpose of the fraternity is to become more familiar with the various fields of engineering through lectures and field trips.

The officers are: President, Rodney Blauser; Vice-President, Robert Link; Secretary, Grover Wachter; Treasurer, Carl Swartz.

Phi Delta Phi

A social fraternity, Phi Delta Phi was organized in November, 1948. Any male student, upon invitation by the fraternity, is eligible for membership. The fraternity's purpose is to promote education, character, and fraternity among its members.

Lambda Sigma Chi

This sorority was organized tor the purpose of uniting the girls of the college for service, self-improvement, and pleasure. They have sponsored several dances, a Christmas party for unfortunates and rummage sales.

1st Row: S. Saul, B. Shepherd. 2nd Row: J. Everhart, N. Heilman, B. Lovett, R. Hauser, L. Caplan, P. Fierman, Je. Smith, S. Peckham, M. Mayer, C. Morton, A. Wujnovich. 3rd Row: H. The Tower

The Tower, the yearbook of the York Junior College, is staffed by members of the Freshman and Sophomore classes, with faculty advisor, Miss McNitt. The staff is divided into Editorial, Art, Photography, and Business departments. The purpose of the book is to record, in pictures and in writing, the events of the school year.

FRESHMEN

The class of 1950 was organized October 20, 1948, when the freshmen elected their class officers. The esoteric group chosen were: president, John Potts; vice-president, Philip Eichelberger; treasurer, Emerson Frey; secretary, Nancy Boyer. Robert Newlin and Nina Hibner were elected as vice-president and secretary, respectively, for the student cabinet. John P. White, instructor in the chemistry department, was chosen freshman class advisor.

The week of October 11, 1948, the initiation of the freshman girls by the second year sorority members lasted the entire week. The girls without lipstick, and sweeping the front sidewalk, were "rare sights." Each day of the week the girls had a special duty to perform. Along with these, they had to carry a sign with their name printed and also wear pigtails.

On Thursday, October 14, 1948, a school picnic was held at the Y.W.C.A.'s Camp Cann-edi-on. The event was highlighted when the lower classmen won the annual freshman-sophomore football game.

The beginning of November there appeared in assembly six new freshman cheerleaders. This was the first pep team the college has had. The green and white clad sextette cheered their teams to victory.

The new fraternity, Phi Delta Phi, was organized early in November by the freshman boys who thought there was necessity for another fraternity. Their ideal is summed up in Phi Delta Phi's motto: "Education, Fraternity, and Brotherhood"; and in the meaning of the name: "Brotherhood through enlightenment."

Leaving classes at 8:15 a. m., February 3, 1949, York Junior College observed the annual Freshman Day. Emptying chairs from classrooms, be-decking themselves with wigs and costumes from the tower, barricading the library door with a showcase, the freshmen left the school in a turmoil. Thoroughly convinced the inside of the school was a wreck, they marched outside, covering the front lawn with fifteen or more cars. Found in the trees were mounted owls and on the steps a statue. The afternoon brought about snowball fights followed by dinner at the Golden Glow Cafeteria. The hilarious day closed with a "get together" in the lounge.

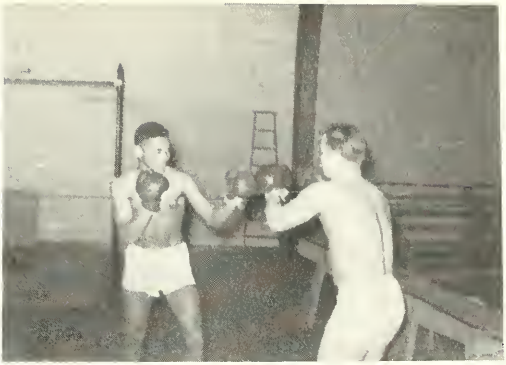
SPORTSMANSHIP

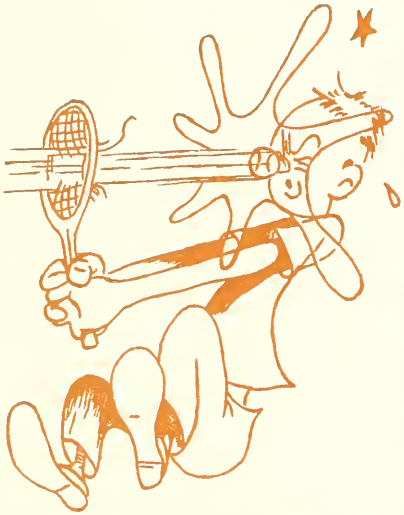
PHYSICAL EDUCATION

George Seiffert, in his characteristic pose—just "horsing around."

Under the heading of extra-curricular activities, we find "Athletics." The word "Athletics" encompasses a wealth of history and tradition. Tastes in sports vary according to the geographic location of a state or country. In England, soccer is the leading sport; Mexicans enjoy jai a-lai games; Canada is known for ice hockey, and the Japanese practice the art of judo. Here, in the United States, we delight in practically every form of athletics. We play no particular favorites. Our main theme is not who won or lost but how the game was played. There is no substitute for sportsmanship on the field of friendly strife.

College athletics represent the zenith in their particular field of endeavor. Here, at York Junior College, we have done our utmost to keep sports at the high level. School spirit is kept buoyed up by the efforts of both athletes and spectators. In the perusal of this or any other yearbook, bear in mind that to err is human but to be anti-sports-minded is to be only half alive.





MANAGERS and TRAINERS of THE FLYING DUTCHMEN

They also serve who only sit and wait. The foregoing statement has many applications. In this instance, we choose to apply it to the unseen cogs of the basketball machine of our fair college.

Endless hours of practice and planning are needed to put a basketball team on the floor. Yes, the players themselves practice but there is another contributing element, the coach and his assistants. The team represents the school. People are quick to praise the players when luck is with them and just as quick to ride the coach if the breaks are headed in the wrong direction. The coach can't do the job alone. The trainer and managers who act in the capacity of assistants also shoulder part of the load. It is still a tremendous job no matter how you look at it.

Coach Bob Hulton along with "Basil," the trainer, and the managers, Don Getz and Carl Ortale, and assistant managers, Neal Sunday and William Flinchbaugh, deserve the plaudits of the crowds. So, hats off and let's give three cheers for the "bench brigade."

Teamwork, an outgrowth of athletic participation, has again proven its worth. Teamwork has been the main strategy behind YJC's victorious basketball team. This year, the Flying Dutchmen have completed one of the most successful campaigns on the hardwood in the history of YJC basketball. In early October, when coach Bob Hulton posted a notice for the commencement of basketball practice until now, the end of a victorious season, teamwork, coordinated with skill, was emphasized. Only two of the previous season's team were holdovers, so it was entirely new material with which Bob Hulton had to build the '49 team. Weeks of hard, but patient work, and the team to be known as the Flying Dutchmen began to emerge. Of course only actual game conditions could mold this team into the united body that so successfully defies defeat. To this fact we may trace the few, very few, early reverses.

The Flying Dutchmen opened the season with a non-league tilt, playing the Franklin and Marshall freshmen. This proved to be an impressive victory for the Flying Dutchmen as they defeated Franklin and Marshall 51 to 28. Masek and Hamme led the scoring parade. In rapid succession Mont Alto Forestry School and Johnstown Center were defeated by the powerful offensive attack, sparked by Masek's scoring sprees. With three victories to their credit, YJC first tasted defeat at the hands of the Altoona Undergraduate Center. Here, against a well organized team, YJC found itself floundering during the first few minutes and could never quite head the Altoona team. But the Dutchmen came back to YJC with gained knowledge and the determination to avenge this defeat.

The Flying Dutchmen began another victory string immediately. First they crushed Hershey Junior College and then took a close, exciting game from the Pottsville Undergraduate Center 49 to 48. This game was a real thriller and York's teamwork prevailed. In an uphill fight they overcame a deficit with less than a minute to play and won the game with Hamme's perfectly executed foul shot. A local court record was accomplished against the next opponent, Keystone Junior College. The Dutchmen tallied 91 points, the new record, while Keystone could manage only 40. Still riding high, YJC trampled Harrisburg U. C. garnering 88 points to their rival's 61. After a close game resulting in a loss to Hazleton U. C., YJC bounded back, to defeat Johnstown Center 46 to 42. Franklin and Marshall then took a slow moving game from the Dutchmen on the YJC court. This defeat was the first for the Dutchmen on the YJC court in 23 starts. In Stevens Trade game, Grim amassed 31 points, one point under the YJC record held by Russ Snyder. Then the Navy Plebes took York's measure 65 to 47 at Annapolis. YJC ran up successive victories against Harrisburg U. C. and Hershey Jr. College. Altoona traveled to York to play a very important game. The Dutchmen were equal to the test and although trailing 24 to 22 at the half, they fought their way to an impressive 52 to 42 victory. This victory insured YJC a place in the playoffs to be held at Du Bois.

The Flying Dutchmen playing their last league game reversed an earlier decision handed them by Hazleton U. C. This victory, a 68 to 49 triumph, awarded YJC first place in the league standings. The team had high scorers, Grim and Masek, and very capable ball handlers, Mikell and Brown. But it was Hamme, so profusely capable in both these departments, that would seem a symbol of the Flying Dutchmen. Nevertheless, it was the team as a whole that brought so many victories not a star or stars. The fact that the high scorer of one game was so often among the low scorers in the next is evidence of this fact. With this continuous teamwork so skillfully created and employed by coach Bob Hulton, the team should go on to greater accomplishments, winning the playoffs at Du Bois, then into the intersectional and national NJCAA tournaments at the conclusion of the regular season.

Basketball, the most popular sport with the girls at York Junior College, created lots of aching muscles, but the girls passed these over lightly and fought to win 5 of their 13 games. The ring of merry voices and the sound of Mrs. Flinchbaugh's whistle could be heard three afternoons a week coming from the gym. The members of the team chose Rose Kane and Sylvia Peckham as their captains. The cry "Come on, York" was heard before each game as a token of good luck. At each half the coach could be seen giving the girls the old "1-2-3" fight talk. Due to the girls' fighting spirit and Mrs. Flinchbaugh's faithful coaching, the basketball season this year was a successful one.
